Portland, Jan. 11.—Fully four-fifths of the crop of the state has been sold, according to dealers who have been investigating conditions, and the remainder is rapidly leaving the hands of the growers, although prices are low.

"It is not likely that a single bale of hops will be carried over until next hop harvest in Oregon," one dealer said today, "as growers are all eager to be rid of what they have. This is a queer condition of affairs, compared to this time last year, when hops were worth three times what they are now, and many growers and dealers were determined to hold on for still higher prices. Last year has taught the growers the risk of holding hops over, as the product deteriorates rapidly in the bale after the first year. The strong aroma of hops that comes from the new bale is the essence of the hops escaping, and as yet no way has been discovered to hold it.

"The cleaning up of last year's crop will have a good effect on this year's prices, as there will be no old hops in the way of the new, as there was last year."

Chickens Sell Quickly.
Chicken prices are considered firm, but quotations have not materially advanced. A good many coops came in today, and these were disposed of without parley, as uptown stocks were pretty well cleaned up New Year. The demand for Sunday's consumption was plainly apparent today, when a good buyers were on the street.

Eastern cold storage eggs are still plentiful here, and as they must be sold at about 5c a dozen less than the home product, the price of the imported eggs must be reduced accordingly. Cold storage men have been keeping the price of fresh eggs up to 30c for the past week, in order to work off importations, but the home product has become too plentiful for this to continue.
